

AXA appoints a new Communication and Sustainable Development director

Paris, June 15, 2009

Gaëlle Olivier is appointed AXA Group Executive Vice-President, Communication and Sustainable Development.

“AXA’s Management Board and Executive Committee are delighted to welcome Gaëlle as head of communication and sustainable development. She will add to this position a deep knowledge of our activities, her international experience and a strong attachment to AXA’s values, in an environment which strengthens the strategic importance of communications and sustainable development”, declared Claude Brunet, member of the AXA Management Board in charge of transversal operations, communication, marketing and human resources.

Since she joined the AXA Group, in 1998, Gaëlle Olivier took over several positions at AXA Investment Managers and AXA’s headquarters, as Supervisory Board and Management Board Secretary. She had then a five-year experience at AXA Japan, where she was head of Investment Operations, before becoming head of Strategy and Audit.

Gaëlle Olivier is a graduate of Ecole Polytechnique, ENSAE and the Institut des Actuares.
